Rethinking the Industrial Revolution
Five Centuries of Transition from Agrarian to Industrial Capitalism in England
Michael Andrew Žmolek, University of Iowa

In Rethinking the Industrial Revolution: Five Centuries of Transition from Agrarian to Industrial Capitalism in England, Michael Andrew Žmolek offers the first in-depth study of the evolution of English manufacturing from the feudal and early modern periods within the context of the development of agrarian capitalism. With an emphasis on the relationship between Parliament and working Britons, this work challenges readers to ‘rethink’ the common perception of the role of the state in the first industrial revolution as essentially passive.

The work chronicles how a long train of struggles led by artisans resisting efforts by employers to transform production along capitalist lines, prompted employers to appeal to the state to suppress this resistance by coercion.

READERSHIP:
Readers interested in the history of capitalism and industrialization, focusing on the role of the state, or anyone with an interest in English history or early modern European history.

For more information see http://www.brill.com/rethinking-industrial-revolution